Liars Lie

Lee Ann Womack

Last night, I went out, walkin'.
I could not believe my eyes
I could tell that she wasn't some stranger;
You held her a little too tight.
My heart stopped like it hit a freight train
You kissed her, and twisted the knife
Now you're tryin' to tell me she's nothin';
why should I be so suprised?
Losers lose, winners win;
Cheaters cheat, and sinners sin.
Dreamers dream, cryers cry;
Fools believe, and Liars Lie.

It'll take all I got to forgive you.
As sure as my heart starts to mend,
I'd find you somewhere with another.
You'd hurt me all over again.
Losers lose, winners win, cheaters cheat, and sinners sin;
Dreamers dream, cryers cry, fools believe, and Liars Lie.
I should've known, I should've known, I should've known:
Someone like you--who can't be true--is bound to roam.
Losers lose, winners win;
Ceaters cheat, and sinners sin;
Dreamers dream, cryers cry;
Fools believe, and Liars Lie.

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/