Every Heart

Sara Haze

A summer sunburn
The smile you earned, stumbles and falls
The lessons you've learned
Choices you've made
Your first heartbreak
Getting too old for the batman cape
Simpler times, and wanting to fly
Mesmerized by Christmas lights
Holding out, giving in
All the what ifs and might have beensEvery heart has a story to tell
Some dreams have wings
Some are torn at the seams
And just sit there on the shelf
If you were to walk in my shoes
You'd see we are all the same
So find the love inside yourself
Because every heart has a story to tellA starburst rush, your first real crush
You're bit by a dog, a yellow school bus
Sweet sixteen, that concert you missed
Your best friend and your first kiss
Learning to fall and wanting it all
Believing in Santa Claus
A letter you wrote
A promise you broke
Knowing when to say yes and when to say noEvery heart has a story to tell
Some dreams have wings
Some are torn at the seams
And just sit there on the shelf
If you were to walk in my shoes
You would see we are all the same
So find the love inside yourself
Because every heart has a story to tellSo far away life can take you
Never forget the hearts that shaped youThe love of your life
The fourth of July
The times that you laughed so hard you cried
The first day of ballet
Hardships you've faced
All the memories along the way
It's the love you lost, the love you made

Makes us who we are todayEvery heart has a story to tell
Some dreams have wings
Some are torn at the seams
And just sit there on the shelf
If you were to walk in my shoes
You would see we are all the same
So find the love inside yourself
Because every heart has a story to tellThis is my heart, this is my story to tell
Every heart has a story to tell

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/