Faces

Last night I was woken by my cry
Had a dream just as plain as you and I
Saw the mornin' sun on a woodland in the spring
Still hear the echo crashin' through the trees
Oh when I saw you down I fell upon my knees You and I we were wearin' southern gray
I called to you but I used another name
I beat the ground and I cried out in your pain
Through a scarlet door I watched you slippin' away
And your brother's helpless prayers were all in vain Last night I was woken by my cry
