

So Sublime

Beth Rowley

Who's that girl
The one that I remember
Who was she
With her arms wrapped around the world? Hold on tight to the days
When you were younger
One fine day you'll be asking who's that girl I love the place where I come from I'm happy where I am
Can't stop chasing the tiger's tail
I'm tempted to taste some bitter delight Why is it so sublime
To lose myself in the moment
Maybe I'll never know
Who's that girl? When did I last see outside my window Looking out on the peachy sky
Smelling the sweet sweet air south by the river with my drink winched firmly between my thighs I love the place where I come from I'm happy where I am
can't stop chasing the tiger's tail
I'm tempted to taste some bitter delight Why is it so sublime
To lose myself in the moment
Maybe I'll never know
Who's that girl Why is it so sublime
To lose myself in the moment
Maybe I'll never know
Who's that girl Who's that girl?
who's that girl?
who's that girl?
who's that girl? Can't stop the tiger's tail
I'm tempted to taste some bitter delight Why is it so sublime
To lose myself in the moment
Maybe I'll never know
Who's that girl Why is it so sublime
To lose myself in the moment
Maybe I'll never know
Who's that girl Who's that girl
Who's that girl?
