

Say Goodbye

Joseph Arthur

If you're going to leave
You should say goodbye
You should say goodbye
You should say goodbye
I know it's getting harder every time you cry
But you should say goodbye
You should say goodbye
You left on a cold afternoon
Leaving winter in the month of June
Here for a while, now you're gone too soon
Like a hidden flower that forgot to bloom
If you're going to leave
You should say goodbye
You should say goodbye
You should say goodbye
Can't help but be a liar, saying it will never die

But you should say goodbye
You should say goodbye
You've burnt the sun and broke the moon
I could see you lying in an empty room
The letter you left me was laced with your perfume
Like a butterfly trying to fly ????????
If you're going to leave
You should say goodbye
You should say goodbye
You should say goodbye
Can't help but be a liar, saying it will never die
But you should say goodbye
You should say goodbye
If you're going to leave
You should say goodbye
You should say goodbye
You should say goodbye
