Saturday

Real Estate

I was born on a Saturday
What about you?
Well I know, I already know that you were too
I will go on a screened-in porch on a rainstorm
I won't hold fast, you're waiting past onto no formA strong current will sweep you downstream
It would be best not to resist
The line you're hanging on is fraying
You may as well loosen your gripBut a stranger is living in your old house
What does when you were born still say about you?
It'd be best to jettison what you can't really do
A strong current will sweep you downstream
It would be best not to resist
The line you're hanging on is fraying
You may as well loosen your grip
