Every Time It Rains

Anita Cochran

The sun isnt shining
I see the clouds rolling in
It reminds me of the day
And the words we saidThe thunder and lightning
Is just about to begin
And Im out here in the cold
Thats left over from the storm once againCause every time it rains
Your memory comes pouring in
And every drop that falls
It burns like alcohol flowing through my veinsUntil the winds of change come
And blow the clouds away
Ill still feel the shame
And deal with the pain, every time it rainsMaybe Im foolish
And Ill get through this I know
It just hurts inside that we
Couldnt weather our stormThe last time I saw you
I knew the damage was done
Cause we didnt make it
We didnt get to see the lightning breaking from the sunCause every time it rains
Your memory comes pouring in
And every drop that falls
It burns like alcohol flowing through my veinsUntil the winds of change come
And blow the clouds away
Ill still feel the shame
And deal with the pain, every time it rainsUntil the winds of change come
And blow the clouds away
Ill still feel the shame
And deal with the pain, every time it rains
