

Two Word Joe

Daniel Romano

This is the story of two word Joe
'Bout the saddest old story one person could know
About how his love went fast so his head got slow
And this is how old Joe's story goes
Two word Joe was a regular guy
From a regular town of a regular size

At the age of 21 he made a real fine bride out of Sally Roseluna
Joe was a preacher and intelligent guy
He made a dollar a day but he never asked why

Cus he found great pride in openin' eyes to the power of a womans love
Well Sally was flattered at first I guess

But as time went on she was less impressed
And she caught her blue eyes on a brand new dress

So she found a new daddy in town

Two word Joe was an awful wreck

And we didn't see much of him when Sally left

But in three weeks flat he was back in check

With a bitty named Mary Susan
Low Joe couldn't take that kind of hurtin' again

So he took up the law and he learned the thing

He started living big like the established man

So he could spoil young Mary Sue
Mary Sue got tired of the glitter and gold

She wanted something real before she grew too old

She ran of with a beggar in Buffalo

To go work for the sick and the needy
Low Joe broke down and his mind went clean

And all the cry must have blown his smart part of his brain

Cus two times a loss cause two times the pain

Now he only gets two words in one time

And you can see it in his eyes when he speaks to you

That there is so many words he's tryin' to push on through

He says one word another wanna (?)

And it sounds a little something like this:

No love

Big pain

Sadness remains

Many years

So blue

So lone

No friends

Closed door

This life

What for

No days

No tears
No more
No days
No tears
No more
