Friends

John Michael Montgomery

You say you want to be friends
That's a newly sharpened blade
That's a dagger to the heart
Of the promises we madeThat's a chapter full of pain
A season full of rain
A dark and stormy night
Spent all aloneFriends get scattered by the wind
Tossed upon the waves
Lost for years on endFriends slowly drift apart
They give away their hearts
Maybe call you now and then
But you wanna be just friendsYou say you love me very much
And you'll always hold me dear
Those are the sweetest words
I never want to hearWhat's a love without desire
A flame without a fire
Can't warm me late at night
When I need you mostFriends get scattered by the wind
Tossed upon the waves
Lost for years on endFriends slowly drift apart
They give away their hearts
Maybe call you now and then
But you wanna be just friendsFriends slowly drift apart
They give away their hearts
Maybe call you now and thenDarling can't you see
This is killing me
We could never be
Just friends
