It Takes Two

Michael Kaneko

A little bit of lovin' here in my life
Will undo the mess from our faded ties
Dance and sing under the moonlit night
Someone to hold on to

So tired of chasing all these endless dreams
It does no good for my self-esteem
I'm caught between fiction and reality
These eyes of mine start to lose their glare
Maybe someday our hearts may start to grow

(CHORUS)
It takes two to make it right in this mess I see
I'm bound by the image of my history
I don't want anything to disturb my flow
Turn it all around, and let the wolves run free
Poison in the bottle is what sustains me
These walls that were living in can feel so lonesome

I lost my mind to her warmth before
A poor boy with a fragile soul
I refuse to let my heart lead and take control but Now are we ready for more

Someday our hearts may start to grow
We were lost in this city, but I'm ready to find a home

(CHORUS)
It takes two to make it right in this mess I see
I'm bound by the image of my history
I don't want anything to disturb my flow
Turn it all around, and let the wolves run free
Poison in the bottle is what sustains me
These walls that were living in can feel so lonesome

Someday our hearts may start to grow
We were lost in this city, but I'm ready to find a home

(CHORUS)
It takes two to make it right in this mess I see

I'm bound by the image of my history
I don't want anything to disturb my flow
Turn it all around, and let the wolves run free
Poison in the bottle is what sustains me
These walls that were living in can feel so lonesome

(CHORUS)
It takes two to make it right in this mess I see
I'm bound by the image of my history
I don't want anything to disturb my flow
Turn it all around, and let the wolves run free
Poison in the bottle is what sustains me
These walls that were living in can feel so lonesome

Lyrics Submitted by Synx

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/