Pain of Salvation

"I am the unclean
The black drop at the bottom of your cup
You'd better drink or throw me up
'Cause I am on your lip and tongue
God

I'm not yours as much as you are mine
So let me in to be your lung
Just breathe me deep and take another sip
So still

A taste so sweet but so bitter the kill
Still on your lip
You are so close
I'll let you come

Between my legs you are closer death than sun And I'm not your daughter as much as you're my son

I'll let you come

In my mouth on your lip
So ready and thirsty for the next sip
You let me in, I let you come
I'd never let you down
You let me win, I let you drown!"

Getting used to painI am crying unwept tears through this violence I'll die trying to break this thick crust of silence"I am the greatest star So bright that you all come forth and beg to taste my light I can take you far but I'll burn you out before we get there

But hey! Who am I to stand in your way?

Go ahead; swallow me down!

I'll have no problems finding myself out

When you've gone down

When you've gone down

When your all cracked and wound."

Getting used to painI am crying unwept tears through this violence I'll die trying to break this thick crust of silenceTrading pain is a bad deal

I've got more than my share Too much to bear!

Every beat of the hammer

Every blood stricken street:

A way to trade off heat. They will bleed till I'm empty
If I deserve to die I'll make it show
I will stain your affection, I will wear out your heart

You'll follow where I goBlood stains
Cut veins
Filthy
Murder
Leave me...
