

Life Story

Bodyjar

Am I awake? It's hard to say
I turn away from the darkest sunrise
I find my clothes and write a note and let the rain wash the sleep from my eyes I won't lie to you I won't tell you something now I know there's nothing that I can do
And I'll be gone before tomorrow, next time What if I said that I would do it again
Not giving up
Not giving up this time
My life story It wasn't me it wasn't you
A torn up photo inside my pocket
A picture fades, one last mistake
And now I know it's too late to stop it I've lost everything when self doubt sets in
It seems so easy to runaway
As I look out the window towns keep passing by All unite and stand
