Then You Hit Me

The Attic

Looking back on it now it doesnâ€™t matter so much, but I was out of my mind and losing all touch
But something happened on the night that I saw you
One in a crowd I was wasting my time, wasting my youth, it was the worst kind of crime
I just wouldnâ€™t listen but deep inside I knew

And then you hit me, and it felt so good
And then you hit me, and it felt so good
And then you hit me, and it felt so good
And then you hit me, and it all came alive

So I got me a job on a government scheme, the work it was boring and the wages were mean
But something had changed on the night that I met you
And when we left home and got a place of our own, I had my doubts but I was never alone
I just wouldnâ€™t listen but deep inside I knew

And then you hit me, and it felt so good
And then you hit me, and it felt so good
And then you hit me, and it felt so good
And then you hit me, and it all came alive

And some may say that Iâ€™m a lucky soul, plucked out of the gutter before I got too old
But nothing changes and the world looks just the same
Yeah, nothing changes and the world looks just the same
