

Tales of Innocence

Christian Death

We were swollen lanterns of prey
Lighting the way for hunger to feast
Our firm young skin free to befoul
Caressing intrusion of the beast
Bodies like toys bargain for favoursThe gift of sacrificeWiping my body never again clean
Guilt bleeds from taste of my sin
In my shame are memories of passion
The one thing of pleasure within
Bodies like toys bargain for favoursThe gift of sacrificeNo flowers to spare, she gave herself them
And when she returned she was, she was Still stillBodies like toys bargain for favoursThe gift of sacrifice
