

A Fifth of Feelgood

Audiostrobelight

Whoa, this town won't be the death of me I put the phone down, I didn't like where your words had been

Your downer style couldn't kill my smile

I admit, you never win

I said I swear, and I meant it, this is a part of me

You won't find me crossing my fingers Outside there's a world there's never been

I'm finding strength places that it's never been

I'm cutting off all the weights in my life that have brought me down this far

I'm feeling, I feel alive in my own skin

Rebuilt anew trying to be who I used to be

Not just fighting and working just to live but maybe making it worth it now, to give what I have to give Outside there's a world there's never been

I'm finding strength places that it's never been

and I've found with a fifth of feelgood

I can navigate through seas with the darkest skies

I'm getting back to the point in my life where I meant it when I say Whoa, this town wont me the death of me This feels much better than the first time

I feel alive and much stronger not naive and alone

so I hope that you got what you wanted while I ride into the sunset, (sunset), sunset

Outside there's a world there's never been

I'm finding strength places that it's never been

and I've found with a fifth of feelgood

I can navigate through seas with the darkest skies

I'm getting back to the point in my life where I meant it when I say
