Good Riddance

You don't speak not a single word
Can correlate a single thing you've heard
You just erase all the things we've said
With a mask of disapproval And it's always about you
Convinced yourself there's better things to do
Like building a wall You double up at the thought of fun
You're not concerned about anyone
You're alone when the sun goes down
Like a cold, forsaken shadow And you're trapped inside yourself
Nothing can reach you
Nobody matters anyway
