

Bittersweet

Kristine W

Bittersweet are the tears that I taste when we are kissing
Bittersweet as I lay all alone and it's you that I'm missing
Bittersweet I embrace all the secrets that you told me Bittersweet when I long for your arms all around just to hold me - console me I made it home before the break of day
And scent of your sweet love won't wash away
No need to call you, you're already gone
But my intuition, well I hope it's wrong
I hope it's wrong Bittersweet are the tears that I taste when we are kissing
Bittersweet as I lay all alone and it's you that I'm missing
Bittersweet I embrace all the secrets that you told me
Bittersweet when I long for your arms all around just to hold me - console me I wish that I could lock away your love away
I'd gather all the pieces and the pain
'Cause your touch cuts through me like no other love
So deeply haunting yes I'm guilty of Oh I'm guilty of Bittersweet are the tears that I taste when we are kissing
Bittersweet as I lay all alone and it's you that I'm missing
Bittersweet I embrace all the secrets that you told me
Bittersweet when I long for your arms all around just to hold me - console me I stand alone
Feeling foolish and sometimes deserted
Without you to hold
Was it that I was meant to deserve you
It's tearing me apart
That you're mine for a time
But I don't own you
But I don't own you Bittersweet are the tears that I taste when we are kissing
Bittersweet as I lay all alone and it's you that I'm missing
Bittersweet I embrace all the secrets that you told me
Bittersweet when I long for your arms all around just to hold me - console me
Bittersweet (repeat)
