Damage Control

Sonic Syndicate

Weaving another web of lies around me
Leaving an endless trail of pain behind meI don't deserve the love you give to me
How to mend the damage done to you?
I would trade a kingdom for a real life mulligan
To vindicate what I have doneHome is where the heart is
So maybe that's where I left mine
I know I have failed you
But please don't change the lock on your heartHome is where the heart is
So maybe that's where I left mine
I know I have failed you
But please don't change the lock on your heartEncaged in a mirage of my own design
Engaged something I hardly can defineEven though I'm always on my run
Echoes of your voice still hunts me down
Waging war on myself
To vindicate what I have done
(To vindicate what I have done)Home is where the heart is
So maybe that's where I left mine
I know I have failed you
But please don't change the lock on your heartHome is where the heart is
So maybe that's where I left mine
I know I have failed you
But please don't change the lock on your heartThe older that I get
The more memories I have to leave behind
Can't undo anything at all
But for you I'll step in line and remain confinedMy halo will never glow again
But the horns keep penetrating my skullHome is where the heart is
So maybe that's where I left mine
I know I have failed you
But please don't change the lock on your heartHome is where the heart is
So maybe that's where I left mine
I know I have failed you
But please don't change the lock on your heartMy halo will never glow again

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/