

To Love and Loathe

Yellow Red Sparks

Iâ€™d buy a suit, a fancy coat
And bonnets for your hair to make you feel alive when you donâ€™t
I know you said long ago
The lines you cross will cost you son, itâ€™s done, more than youâ€™ll ever know

But I love you and then I loathe you
You let me bend and break to suffocate
And if I want to, let me haunt you
Iâ€™m in your dreams for nowâ€¦bet you donâ€™t know how

I go to eat and every street
Reminds me of the walks and talks and flowered sandals on your feet
And happy times have gone behind
The screen that flickers on until itâ€™s gone, while youâ€™re moving on

But I love you and then I loathe you
You let me bend and break just to suffocate
And if I want to, let me haunt you
In your dreams for now, â€˜til you donâ€™t know how I got out

(Donâ€™t leave me, donâ€™t leave me and donâ€™t lead me on)

And all the time I thought that it was hard
And then you rot within his arms
Thatâ€™s what I fought for so long

And if I love you why do I loathe you?
Iâ€™ve learned theyâ€™re both the same when I hear your name
And if I miss you or just resist you
Youâ€™re in my dreams for now, â€˜til I donâ€™t know how you got out
