Softly through the Void

Elf Power

I laid my eyes upon it
The dark world rising up at night
I wanted, not to want it
I tried to live in another life
I tried to look and see what everyone else see's
I saw the face of god there, staring back at me
Something pull's me softly through the void
The way back home will never be destroyed
One lays there, undiscovered
Taking fourth in another shape
From one thing to another
Moving on till the body breaks
I tried to find a place where no one's ever been
I always found a flag there, waving in the wind
All the time will slowly tick away
I feel you coming closer every day
Spreading out like vines that grow across the cold concrete
And then they they spill on down the hill and crawl back underneath
Like fingers reaching through the land to meet back at the sea
And I will walk beside them endlessly
Just like an empty bottle
A great shape hanging off to the side
Don't hide away tomorrow
Come back, return to life
I tried to look and see what everyone else see's
I saw the face of god there, staring back at me
Something pull's me softly through the void
The way back home will never be destroyed
