Petals

Baxter Dury

There's a house in Chiswick where she once lived
She loved to sit and give me a kiss
But she knows nothing wrong
Used to tell you more lies just to fill out my life
Punching through walls that was never right
But she knows nothing wrongDo you remember when we were just younger
Chances fell like petals in the hotel floor
And everyone said
There's a house in Chiswick where you once lived
I love to tell you that I love to live
But you know there's nothing wrongWrapped in cheap linen and you danced all night
But you left me hanging for dear life
But you know there's nothing wrongDo you remember when we were just younger
Chances fell like petals, hotel down in Brixton
Lovers goThere's a house in Chiswick where you once lived
I tried to break and give you everything
But you know there's nothing wrong
And I kiss and tell everything I can
But I don't really know if I'm a man
But you know there's nothing wrongDo you remember when we were just younger
Chances fell like petals in a hotel in Brixton
Lovers go
