The Butterfly Effect

Audrey Auld

[Adrian]if you could go back what would you change what would you do again ever would remain the same what would you give, and what would you keep what would you take, and what would you leave if you could go back what would you change
what would you do again ever would remain the same
what would you give, and what would you keep
what would you take, and what would you leave [Lowkey]i see an old lady holding the door as i tumble out my wheel chair and roll to the floor first thing in the morning in the grocery store not sure if this alcoholics body can hold me no more i hustled up enough change for the whiskey in my hand tried to tell all the people but they didnt understand too many years spent sleeping in the gutters on my hands and on my knees eating from the rubbish roam the streets with very little keeping me sane too many twisted visions left engraved deep in my brain nightmares are right there and i dont think good thoughts happy memories became haze and days when i could walk make me hate those that have a life and could stand do you people know what i sacrificed for this land my aching heart cant feel the bladed glass in my feet don't take a glance cause I'm just a face you pass in the street

[Adrian]if you could go back what would you change
what would you give, and what would you keep
what would you take, and what would you leave
if you could go back what would you change
what would you give, and what would you keep
[Lowkey]help!
[Adrian]if you could go back what would you change
what would you give, and what would you keep

what would you give, and what would you keep
[Lowkey]help!
