Nine Cats

Porcupine Tree

The butterfly sailed on the breeze Past a field of barbed wire trees Where golden dragons chased around Pampered poppies on the groundTwo silver trout sat way on high And watched a royal samurai Plant two black orchids in a box And strap it to a laughing foxA minstrel bought a crooked spoon He gave it to a blue baboon Who filled it full of virgin snow And wondered it in the afterglowA toad stood in his ballet shoes Teaching sixteen kangaroos How to skip across a lake They found it hard to stay awakeA pharaoh played a merry tune And watched nine cats dance on the moon I didn't know what all this meant I didn't know why I'd been sent
