

Honey I Been Thinking About You

Jackie Greene

Well I ain't interested in the clothes that you wear
In the car that you drive or the cut of your hair
Honey, you got something that I can't compare
And I've been thinking about you I don't really care about the weather outside
And I don't want to talk about national pride
All that I need for to be satisfied is a
Woman who's nothing like me Love is for fools, yes a fool such as I
And I can't tell you how and I can't tell you why
Ah, but honey I just can't deny you at all Oh and I don't want to be your two-weekend lover
Your boy-in-the-bag, your one-or-the-other
And I ain't looking for a wife or a mother
But honey I've been thinking about you Well maybe you're wrong and maybe you're right
And maybe we could sit here and argue all night
But maybe you just better turn out the lights
'Cause honey I've been thinking about you Honey I've been thinking about you for a while
And it's driving me mad, yes it's cramping my style
And I ain't asking you to walk down the aisle but I Suitcase to staircase, to candlelit room
Where I sift through the silk in the air and perfume
And I'll be loving you baby, I'll be loving you soon
'Cause honey I've been thinking about you I don't really care about your hot-blooded sister
I'm sure there's a man for to love her and miss her
I didn't mean nothing, I just happened to kiss her
But honey I was thinking about you I don't really care about your daddy's Corvette
Your house in the hills or your pink private jet
Or that ring on your finger you say you regret
'Cause honey, I've been thinking about you Oh rat race to car chase to trains in the station
Everyone wants to change their location
Everyone wants some new inspiration
But I can't stop thinking about you
