

Lighthouse

Lucy Spraggan

I found a map and it broke my heart ,
I didn't know that i would ever go this far,
With a compass point driving ink into my arm. The Father, Son and the Holy ghost we don't talk too Much never been that close, Pouring spirits while i follow the northern star , And as the birds fly south I've been missing a small house, that holds all my words and precious thoughts, I found your message lying at the bottom of the bottle, come back to where the streets are paved with stone I believe in you , you believe in me your the lighthouse in the storm, I believe its true i can follow come back to where the streets are paved with stone, I swapped the cent of open ocean there for the factory steel and the engineers well , i'm coming back to something beautiful, All the noise and all the lies are all the things i sacrificed that i traded for the way you make me feel, And as the days they pass forming through the hourglass you used to be beneath my feet along the shore, I found your message lying at the bottom of the bottle, come back to where the streets are paid with stone, i believe in you , you believe in me your the lighthouse in the storm,
I believe its true i can follow you,
Come back to where the streets are paved with stone,
back to where the streets are paved with stone ,
Once around the world ,
Once around the world ,
Once around the world ,
Back to you ,
Once around the world,
Once around the world ,
Once around the world ,
Back to you,
I believe in you , you believe in me, your the lighthouse in the storm , i believe its true ,i can follow you
Come back to where the streets are paved with stone,
Back to where the streets are paved with stoned, Oh,oh,oh,oh,oh,oh,oh,oh,oh,oh ,oh {2}
Once around the world,
Once around the world,
Back to where the streets are paved with stone,
Back to where the streets are paved with stone.
