

Holy Heart Failure, Batman! (feat. Kirk Kisch)

Out With the Old

It's the bitter nights
And the sleepless fights
That slowly rip
The life from me
I'm over everything I've had to feel
And everything you said to me
Just back off, and move on
While I sit here along by myself
Alone by myself I've grown up and watched you stay at seventeen
You always thought you were, better than me
But we both know that time will change and you'll forget me
Don't worry I'll remember
The person you used to be I've become such a bitter person since we fell through
You made me realize everything I didn't want to think was true
I know now that I should keep my eyes out for the finer things
And chin up out there
There's someone there for me I've grown up and watched you stay at seventeen
You always thought you were, better than me
But we both know that time will change and you'll forget me
Don't worry I'll remember
The person you used to be The person you used to be I'll never understand where I went wrong
Was it something I said?
Was it something I did?
Can you just tell me! I've grown up and watched you stay at seventeen (at seventeen!)
You always thought you were, better than me
But we both know that time will change and you'll forget me
Don't worry I'll remember
The person you used to be

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>