Learning To Swim

Lalah Hathaway

I can't breathe and I can't see in front of me
And I am feeling lost at see without you
And I don't know which way is left and which is right
But I will go out of my mind without youSo I will try to look into your heart
And see the man you claim you areJust like learning to swim all over again
I have to believe that I can
And I'll give you my heart all over againOver my head, that's where I seem to always be
And I can't breathe and I can't see without you
You bring me down, I will have known it all along
And I'll sink just like a stone without youSo I will try to look into your heart
And see the brand new man you say you areJust like learning to swim all over again
I have to believe that I can
And I'll give you my heart all over againSo I've lived this live a thousand years
Somehow I, I can swallow all of my tears
And dive right in with my eyes opened wideJust like learning to swim all over again
I have to believe that I can
And I'll give you my heart all over againSo I'm learning to swim all over again
I have to believe that I can
And I'll give you my heart all,
Again and again and again
