A.C. Newman

I'm the star of a book you wrote before your career was illustrious Though only renters and college kids skimmed through Skipped through to the end to see if you got help from someone there up on high
Who may have heard the beacon's faint cry
"I could do things for you, I can do things for you" All the reasons I always dreamed of school
I just dropped out and left them there
It was always the fabulous stain on my reputation for opening doors
And selling arts and crafts from the floor
Lately I know this much no more, we've been waiting for you
We've been waiting for you All done kidding, done restating
Some teen beat fears of the bright lights fading
You learn to wean yourself off of it Did some orphan's lament get heard one night, pinball through moons and time
Wind through some harmless darkness, bounce off stars
And knock into some warm waiting arms?
Or was it just some time served, some proof
Until we learned some obvious truth?
That we'd been waiting for you
We've been waiting for you All done kidding, done restating
Some teen beat fears of the bright lights fading
You learn to wean yourself off of it We've been waiting for you
