The Girl in Black

Black Light Burns

There's a flame in the desert at the foot of the hills

And there's a circle in the sand where the water spills

There's a line up the spine of the girl in black

And it rips through her dress at the small of her back

She's been waiting there to take you through that door

So you can lay her down on the cavern floor

And you'll see the same flame burning in her eyes

As you smear your stink across her inner thighs

You couldn't leave well enough alone

You hold your heart like it's made out of stone

You couldn't leave well enough alone

Alone alone alone

She slithers through the snow like a snake but she's still

And she come's floating through the window without touching the sill

She prefers to make an entrance without using the door

And she'll be standing on your bed before she crosses the floor

She's a will-of-the-wisp as she's swinging her hips

Her breath is like a worm spinning silk from her lips

And tonight spook lights will be seen from your room

And you and her and Jack and I are swimming in gloom

You couldn't leave well enough alone

You hold your heart like it's made out of stone

You couldn't leave well enough alone
