Mason / Dixon

Urge Overkill

What happened in North Carolina?
Somebody told me the leaves are gone,
Your laundry line's dry.
A house unholy.
What'd you do to me? Now you're through with me
you're going downtown.
So let's get it together one last time before we go to war.
Let's go to war.
I should've realized
there'd be a bad suprise.
My crime below the Mason Dixon line.
What happened in North Carolina?
Thought you were lonely.
I should've known you'd find some time for crime.
But I never worry
I've been across the skies about a thousand times
I'm going down now.
You're gonna need it every time before you go to war.

Let's go to war.
Let's start a war.
I should've realized
there'd be a bad suprise.
My crime below the Mason Dixon line.
I really don't remember you.
I really don't remember you.
I should've realized
there'd be a bad suprise.
My crime below the Mason Dixon line.
What happened in North Carolina?
My crime below the Mason Dixon line.
What happened in North Carolina?
My crime below the Mason Dixon Line.

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/