Maybe

Darren Hayes

Maybe you're gone, you had to get outta here
It's easy to get lost in fear
But maybe now the weight has lifted
You're sailing through the air
Making your way, a traveling acrobat
You're putting on your bowler hat
Speeding through the atmosphere
Past planes and meteorites
Maybe you're gone
Maybe you're lost somewhere
Floating in outer space, a radio wave
Turning into some secret place I've never been
Leaving your heart beating in fragile hands
And nobody understands
Maybe you're gone
Maybe you are finally coming home
Maybe the end is the beginning
The game is no fun when you're winning
The pool is empty unless you're swimming
And trying to keep afloat
Maybe you stayed just a little while
The party was over but you realize
That memory makes you immortalize
You end when you're beginning

And maybe you're gone
Maybe you're lost somewhere
Floating in outer space, a radio wave
Turning into some secret place I've never been
Leaving your heart beating in fragile hands
And nobody understands
Maybe you're gone
Maybe you are finally coming home
All the lights shine above you
They become a part of you
All the earth seems so tiny in your hands
All the stars move inside you
All the pain well that's behind you
All the secrets will blind you

Understand, understand
Maybe you had to get out of here
Maybe you lost your way down here
Maybe you've found shinier star
A shinier star
Leaving your heart beating in fragile hands
And nobody understands
Maybe you're gone
Maybe you are finally coming home
