Let the Wretched Come Home

Jennifer Leonhardt

every day you gotta remake life build it up, tear it down man it's like a knife to the head lay down in it after you make that bed and if i don't like it could be it's a test to see if i'll fall or fly give me half a chance to prove myself you know at least i'm bound to try chorus

let the wretched come home
i've seen about enough to turn my heart to stone

alice was a blue-gown aaron was a lord and i was just a juniper-tree ever since the day i walked out of my father's house love's been the death of me (been the death of me) try to work it out try to leave it alone try not to think about it all the time standing on the corner of another careless town all of these days stretched out in a line
