

You'll Think of Me

Elvis Presley

I'm sorry now girl, but I must leave you
There's something deep inside my soul keeps calling me
The winter wind girl, will not deceive you And in your cold and empty bed
You'll think of me, oh yes
You'll think of me You'll see me coming, you'll see me going
Don't ask me why, I'm just the kind needs to be free
Just like that outlaw wind keeps on a-blowin' Yeah, in your cold and empty bed
You'll think of me, oh yes
You'll think of me You'll think of me Now I know you loved me just like I wanted
I know you'd follow me across an endless sea
But baby, I've got a heart that's haunted Yeah, in your cold and empty bed
You'll think of me, oh yes
You'll think of me Ah, but you should know girl, that I'll be crying
Out on that lonely road where not a soul can see
I'll shed my tears for a love that's dying Yeah, in your cold and empty bed
You'll think of me, oh yes
You'll think of me The summer sun girl will bring a stranger
And he'll be better to you than I used to be
And when he takes you into his arms girl Well, in your warm and loving bed
You won't think of me, no, no
You won't think of me You won't think of me Then in your warm and loving bed
You won't think of me, no, no
You won't think of me You won't think of me
You won't think of me
You won't think of me

Songwriters

MORT SHUMAN Published by

Lyrics Â© BMG RIGHTS MANAGEMENT US, LLC

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>