

Inside

Chely Wright

I see you sitting on a white bed
With every drop of water just outside your window
I hear you humming tunes from your head
You're smiling while your waiting for your star I feel you just about to break up
You're a little scared of everything that you know
But don't worry, nothing's gonna change us
Don't you know that I'm in love with everything you are You are amazing, you are wonderful
You are small and you are big at the same time
You're still walking when you want so much to fly
You have so many questions, and every answer inside You're still here, sitting on a white bed
But maybe then again you're resting in your own cloud
They're like you, everyone you're watching
You know how it feels, and they sure do need you now You are amazing, you are wonderful
You are small and you are big at the same time
You're still walking when you want so much to fly
You have so many questions, and every answer inside You are amazing, you are wonderful
You are small and you are big at the same time
You're still walking when you know that you can fly
You have so many questions, and every answer inside
