Who On Earth

Anneli Drecker

Far away the sky is turning grey
Although the sun is shining above right here
No, I won't let the fish eat you...
And of course I know they wouldn't do!
But you're too little to understand that
Say, who on earth can guide us
Help us stear this boat on shore?
The stream might drag us under
Soon we'll hit the waterfall
Say, who on earth can save us
From the thunder in our hearts?
I swear to you, no matter what
We'll never be apart! far away
There is a clear new day...
But it's gonna rain first in our heads
Let's take the car down the highway
And park it down by the bay
Dip our toes into the water
Say who on earth can guide us
Through these misty, curving roads
And lay their hands upon our shoulders
Point out where to go?
Say who on earth can save us
From the thunder in our hearts?
I swear to you, no matter what
They won't tear us apart!
Who eavesdropped behind my chandeliers...
The trolls have all popped out
Everything is here
Easy-peasy lemon time
Tout va bien, cherie
I'm a concubine
I'm a concubine
