Seashell

Annette Cantor/Deuter

Roaming softly through yourself
You watched the words change for someone else
From an echo in a seashell
A drunken thought or a long farewellAnd then tonight I'll dive into your eyes
Will we feel like this for the rest of our lives?
Just stay put, tied to a stone
Do I really want this stone to be thrown?We heard the sea, black and deep
Everything I give is everything that I keep
So shake the leaves off this treeAnd in the dark blue light
I watched the bottle sail into the night
Can't meet you home, shaking like a leaf
You couldn't swim even though you live by the seaA flock of owls know your name
Will you promise me to stay the same?I leaned my hands in your cold sand
I looked up and saw all the sunlight up again
Right after night I'll follow you home
Right after light I'll follow your footsteps on the snowWe heard the sea, black and deep
We heard the sea, black and deep
We heard the sea, black and deep
We heard the sea, black and deep
We heard the sea, black and deepWe heard the sea, black and deep
Everything I give is everything that I keep
Everything I give is everything that I keep
Everything I give is everything that I keepEverything I give is everything that I keep
Everything I give is everything that I keep
Everything I give is everything that I keep
Everything I give is everything that I keepEverything I give is everything that I keep
Everything I give is everything that I keep
Everything I give is everything that I keep
Everything I give is everything that I keepEverything I give is everything that I keep Everything I give is everything that I keep
