

One O'Clock Tomorrow

FM

FM

Black Noise

One O'Clock Tomorrow

It was dawn, when we left, boarded ship, and the last time that we saw the sun.

Far ahead, lie the stars, and the new lands that we will call home.

We must leave, we must dare, find the shape of our future there, far beyond...In the stars, there is peace, there is life, there are new lands for mankind to name.

Far behind, lies the earth, and the many that chose to remain.

They are gone, passed away, lived their life as we lived a day.

Days are long, far beyond...

Centuries have passed in moments

The futures we have seen

A million stars now lost to memory

Where we have planted seed. To live To live in the depths of space

A life A life that will never end

Alone Alone in a place without time

In the same way I still

Dream Dream of our homeland far

Away Away in the past we knew

Somewhere Somewhere in the vastness and void

Will we always travel Within a ship of mind and metal

The sun has never shone

Along the many halls and pathways

The wind has blown.

Along the way though some remain

There are many who still search on

A hidden voice within us calling

And leading us back home.

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>