Dont Look Down

David Ryan Harris

Son what you dont understand
My words might never explain
So I am hoping that time will
Things may not go as you planned
Dark clouds might bring you pain
But I will be in your heart still, telling youDont look down, dont feast your eyes on things that are on the ground
And if it gets hard to focus
When youre traveling almost at the speed of sound
Feeling nowhere bound, remember what I told you
And dont you dare look downDont look down, noNo father wants his son
To repeat the wrongs his daddys done
I want you to get it right child
I wont always be here for you
So to yourself always be true
And if you get lost, use your inner light child, shine it andDont look down
Dont feast your eyes on things that are on the ground
And if it gets hard to focus
When youre traveling almost at the speed of sound
Feeling nowhere boundAlmost out of control, burn rubber and not your soul
Because something lives within
That you can count on, there is no hand to hold
When the world seems dark and coldRemember what I told you
And dont you dare look downDont you dare look down
Dont look down
When youre traveling almost at the speed of sound
Dont you dare look down
