

Trust (Original Version)

Lynyrd Skynyrd

I'd like to tell you all a story
About a friend of mine
Who liked to drink good whiskey, oh Lord
And have a real good timeHis woman, you know she left him
And stole that boy's brand new car
And ran out of town with a guitar picker
Said he gonna be a superstar
Sure you areYou can't always trust your woman
You can't always trust your best friend
Beware of the ones that you need you all
'Cause they might be the ones that do you inDon't talk no stuff to no slicker
Don't tell your feelings to your friend
Don't tell your woman that you love her
Because that's when your trouble beginsThere are many ladies here among us
That'll stab you in the back when you ain't around
There are many, so many of your very best friends
That'll kick you in the head when you are down
Yes they willYou can't always trust your woman
You can't always trust your best friend
And beware of the ones that you need you all
'Cause they might be the ones that do you inDon't you backtalk the police
'Cause it's his job to put you in the jail
They'll lock you up, boy and throw away the key
And your best friend won't even go your bailThere are many slickers here among us
That are all dressed up in suits and ties
But don't you show your pain, Lord in front of them
'Cause if you do you kiss yourself goodbye, alrightYou can't always trust your woman
You can't always trust your best friend
And beware of the ones that you need you all
'Cause they might be the ones that do you in, do it again

Songwriters

COLLINS, ALLEN / VAN ZANT, RONNIE / ROSSINGTON, GARY ROBERTPublished by

Lyrics Â© Universal Music Publishing Group

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>