

Losing Touch

Barry Manilow

I can tell something's up
You haven't touched your scotch
You've been staring out the window
Now you're staring at your watch And lately that's been happening to much
I think we're losing touch
Is it something I've done
Or things I never said It's been getting pretty quiet
There on you side of the bed
Remember when we used to talk so much
I think we're losing touch After all the love we found together
Who had ever guessed, that we could fall
After all the things we had in common
Where they too common after all? Won't you tell me what's wrong
I haven't got a clue
Is there something we can take for this
Or something we can do Together you and I have had so much
There's so much to lose
And I think we're losing touch
