Insult to Injury

Craig's Brother

So now your offering these hand me down beliefs
You offer neither solace nor relief
In a world of hate
Your words hold no weightSo now your promising your Disney religion
Living in your world without sin
But I just don't relate
Your words hold no weightSo just hold your tongue for a second
And spare me your two bit advice
Did God make me blind and give you my eyes?
So just hold your tongue until you can hold my burdens
Your ideas betray your fantasy
Your anecdotes mock reality
Your words hold no weightSo before you go and throw your pearls before swine
Be warned you won't impress the likes of mine
Cause I've heard your debate
Your words hold no weightSo why do they ring in my ear
And challenge my confidence?
They heckle my pride
My medicine never had this taste
My words in your mouth now sound misplaced
Your words hold no weightSo share my pain and bare my wounds with me
Or don't pretend to call it sympathy
But you're so quick mock my misery
So quick to add insult to injury
