

My Therapy (Instrumental)

Kamelot

When the bliss of salvation has come
I don't mind silence and my fear is gone
It's the chemical way to serenity
It's faith versus science Who fears the ticking of the clock
When centuries are passing in seconds
Black is the colour of my past
A product of society's abuse Come and take me off my daily dose of pain
Take me off and shelter me
From this static nothing
You're the antidote for solitude injected in my veins
May the touch of your hand forever be
My therapy I need your voice to fill the void
A lullaby to sooth my rejection
Pure disinfection of the heart
Before this silence tears my soul apart (Could you) Come and take me off my daily dose of pain
Take me off and shelter me
From this static nothing
You're the antidote for solitude injected in my veins
May the touch of your hand forever be
My therapy I walk alone on the path of self-extinction
With all these chains to pull me down
Come at night
Luminate my inner chambers
And leave the light on when you go
Please don't go... Please don't go... Come and take me off my daily dose of pain
Take me off and shelter me
From this static nothing
You're the antidote for solitude injected in my veins
May the touch of your hand forever be
My therapy Come and taking me off my daily dose of pain
Take me off and shelter me
From the static nothing
You're the antidote for solitude injected in my veins
May the touch of your hand forever be
My therapy
