Bluebird

Katie Noonan

Advisory - the following lyrics contain explicit language:

This rhapsody of tension has lifted from my chest
As my flying cannot destroy the nest
It is merely a new chapter of this dream
Shining brightly does not quell the flame
It merely adds to the symphony of colour
That is this tapestry we weaveAnd I don't believe it sings any louder or soars any higher
But it will not fly at all if not given freedom to beBluebird fly
[x4]At each turn there's more to ignore, more to pretend isn't there
More of the cons on the lists I fear they make My wings slowly curl out of this cracked shell I need to be taught
I need you to hold my hand, baby steps on this new flightAnd I don't believe it sings any louder or soars any higher
But it will not fly at all if not given freedom to beBluebird fly [x4]I hope you don't want to pretend it's all the way it was Cause I cried more then you think of
But now I'm trying to let go of our past
The nest we've made is stronger then we think
And though we all fly we still come home
Guilt is a dark room I cannot live thereAnd I don't believe it sings any louder or soars any higher
But it will not fly at all if not given freedom to beBluebird fly
[x4]Piano Solo

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/