

Fake

Chad Muska

This place has begun to cover me
I recall the light, but the dark smothers me
I prefer the feelings I know right now
I don't worry about feeling very proud
'Cause you don't know how it feels to be misunderstood
To reach for the sky I thought you never would
You don't know how it feels to be misunderstood
To reach for the sky I thought you never would
But I'm bleeding and my hands are bruised
From the grip that I once had on you
And I'm open for a new way
Because there's not much more that I can fake
It's almost seeing your soul for the first time
And watching the mirror show you life in rewind
Capture the ridicule of everyone
I'm tired of trying and they wonder why I'm gone
'Cause you don't know how it feels to be misunderstood
To reach for the sky I thought you never would
You don't know how it feels to be misunderstood
To reach for the sky I thought you never would
But I'm bleeding and my hands are bruised
From the grip that I once had on you
And I'm open for a new way
Because there's not much more that I can fake
I can't fake it
'Cause you don't know how it feels to be misunderstood
To reach for the sky I thought you never would
You don't know how it feels to be misunderstood
To reach for the sky I thought you never would
But I'm bleeding and my hands are bruised
From the grip that I once had on you
And I'm open for a new way
Because there's not much more that I can fake
But I'm bleeding and my hands are bruised
From the grip that I once had on you
And I'm open for a new way
Because there's not much more that I can fake
