Twisted Fate

Mikey Wax

The whisper in my mind
Outside of time
The weight of the words was more than I could hold
I opened up my eyes
To see the sorrow
In disguise
The rest of the day was out of my control
It was the saddest story that I never toldAnd they taught us not to cry
But there is dust in the air that they couldn't hide
The feeling that day was so unusual
If I had a way I wouldve twisted fate
If I was more than just a prophet I would have saved the day
But I somehow hold myself responsibleI took one moments rest
When time rushed in
To catch its breath
The weight of the world was more than I could hold
If this is what it seems
It's all too real
Just like a dream
A dream you do not really have control
It was the saddest story that I never toldAnd they taught us not to cry
But there is dust in the air that they couldn't hide
The feeling that day was so unusual
If I had a way I wouldve twisted fate
If I was more than just a prophet I would have saved the day
But I somehow hold myself responsibleAnd the lights went out and it started to pour
All the pieces of her dreams shattered on the floor
The feeling that day was so unusual
If I had a way I wouldve twisted fate
If I was more than just a prophet I would have saved the day
But I somehow hold myself responsibleThe whisper in my mind
Outside of time
It was the saddest story that I never told
