Tomorrow's Calling

Marianne Faithfull

Tomorrow's calling with promises new
I hear the echo of yesterday's gloomSilver petals of porcelain rose
Cobwebs of filigree
Where I get them from nobody knows
No one but you can seeAll the treasures of time will be there
Take them away, they're free
The finest thing is a love that we'll share
If you will follow meIf I were foolish I'd promise the sky
But I must not let my hopes run too highAnd I wonder when all is said and done
What will the future be?
All I know is that you are the one
If you will follow me, if you will follow me
If you will follow meAnd I wonder when all is said and done
What will the future be?
All I know is that you are the one
If you will follow me, if you will follow me
If you will follow meTomorrow's calling with promises new
I hear the echo of yesterday's gloom
I hear the echo of yesterday's gloom
I hear the echo of yesterday's gloom
