Touch the Hand (Re-Recorded In Stereo)

Conway Twitty

Today I heard my woman say something I never heard her say before
She just told me that she was gonna to leave me and that she didn't love me anymore
But I know that the loving kindness and the understanding that she had when I first met her
Is still there, somewhere
So I'm gonna get down on my knees and I'm gonna say to my babyTouch the hand of the man that made you a woman
Then tell me you don't love me anymore
I was the first man to ever
Hold you in a special kind of wayAnd those unfamiliar feelings that caused you to tremble
I know you remember today
Before you decide that you're gonna leave me
And do things you've never done beforeTouch the hand of the man that made you a woman
Then tell me you don't love me anymore
The two lips that once held sweet surprises
Surprised me and said goodbye todayAnd those two lovin' arms that use to reach for me
Just reached out and pushed me away
I know you believe you don't love me
Before you walk out that doorTouch the hand of the man that made you a woman
Then tell me you don't love me anymore

Songwriters
CONWAY TWITTY, RONALD ROBERT PETERSONPublished by Lyrics Â© Sony/ATV Music Publishing LLC

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/