Cathedral

Courtney Jones

I am a cathedral
I have stood here through the years.
I have sung a thousand hymns and shed ten thousand tearsMy bells used to ring to tell the hour to those near Now a voice's echo in my empty halls are all I hear Days weeks decades and centuries a museum that i wasn't meant to beOh I am a cathedral I've seen cities rise and fall
I've outlasted emperors and kings
Through flood and fire i remain a silent witness to it all but everyone and time's forgotten meWas once a sanctuary a protector of the weak Built to offer solace to all those who came to me
I am a pioneer now disregarded history
But I offer all I have and will forever so it seemsDays, weeks, decades and centuries a museum that I wasn't meant to be Oh I am a cathedral
I've seen cities rise and fall
I've outlasted emperors and kings
Through flood and fire I remain
a silent witness to it all but everyone in time' s forgotten meMoss and ivy are misleading I'm still young at heartDays, weeks, decades and centuries
a museum that I wasn't meant to be
Oh I am a cathedral
I've seen cities rise and fall
I've outlasted emperors and kings
Through flood and fire I remain
a silent witness to it all but everyone and time' s forgotten meOh I remember everything, but everyone in time's forgotten me Ohhhhhh.....
