

Tomorrow You'll Be Gone

Marty Robbins

What can I do when they ask me about you
When they ask me if our love has died away
I wish that I could tell them, you'll be gone a little while
And not that you have gone away to stay I wish that I could tell them that I'd never cared for you
That love was never meant for such as I
But in the mornin' you'll be gone and I'll be left alone
With memories of a love that passed me by If you're ever feeling blue and want me back again
I'll be waiting here and hope my waiting's not in vain
How I wish that I could keep you with me from now on
But it's too late, tomorrow you'll be gone Tomorrow you'll be leavin' and I'll stand and watch you go
In life and love you'll make another start
A million tears may flood my soul but not one will you see
The tears that fall will be within my heart

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>