

In Her Arms You Will Never Starve

Copeland

In her arms you will never starve, you will never freeze
And when the world is hard you can fall asleep there
In a world of chaos she could be your silence
The oceans of her kindness, they will pull you under
They will pull you under

So fall in, break through it
And when you stumble in the cold
She will lead you onward
And in your darkest hour
The storms rage around you now
Her love will be your shelter
And she will pull you under
She will pull you under

What if you can't turn back?
What if you can't turn back when you're finally tired of running?
You're tired of running
What if you can't turn back?
What if you can't turn back when you're finally tired of running?

What if you can't turn back?
What if you can't turn back when you're finally tired of running?
You're tired of running
What if you can't turn back?
What if you can't turn back when you're finally tired of running?

In her arms you will never starve, you will never freeze
And when the world is hard you can fall asleep there
In a world of chaos she could be your silence
The oceans of her kindness, they will pull you under

What if you can't turn back?
What if you can't turn back when you're finally tired of running?
You're tired of running
What if you can't turn back?
What if you can't turn back when you're finally tired of running?

In her arms you will never starve, you will never freeze
And when the world is hard you can fall asleep there

In a world of chaos she could be your silence
The oceans of her kindness, they will pull you under
